

Fall Play:

Sherlock Holmes: A Scandal in Bohemia

Putting on a play is an exciting acting experience for performers of all levels! Through the use of a scripted play, students will improve their stage technique and learn to explore and inhabit specific characters. The play is all-acting, and requires no singing/dancing.

"A Scandal in Bohemia" is a wonderful, fast-paced story featuring Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's masterful creation, the brilliant Sherlock Holmes! In this story, Sherlock first meets the mysterious Irene Adler, who happens to be from New Jersey!

Stage performance is a proven tool for developing self-confidence, poise, and presentation skills.

The class will learn about all the aspects of putting on a play, including costumes, props, and sets, while preparing to perform their play at the end of the semester in our Fall Recital.
