Improv & Physical Comedy

Improvisation is the root of all acting. It's the ultimate team-building activity, and is often used in major corporations as a way to teach teamwork. Visit any grad school acting class, and you'll see plenty of improv. Kids build confidence, a sense of narrative flow, and stage skills while learning to use and trust the "yes, and" techniques so central to unscripted performance.

The art of physical comedy is ancient. From the Greeks to silent film, to modern stage and screen, great performers have always known the value of a well-executed pratfall. Students learn to use their bodies to "make 'em laugh", while gaining body awareness, and learning to express character through physical and facial movement.

The class concludes with a performance at our Spring Recital!
